Volunteers of America National Services Names Paul Soczynski as New Senior Vice President of Healthcare

ALEXANDRIA, Va., March 18, 2024—Volunteers of America National Services recently announced that Paul F. Soczynski has been promoted to Senior Vice President of Healthcare and will oversee VOANS’ health care and PACE services.

VOANS, a subsidiary of Volunteers of America, Inc., is part of a national faith-based human services organization that serves more than 1.5 million people each year. As SVP of Healthcare, Soczynski will play a major role in charting VOANS’ strategic course forward over the next few years.

“This is a pivotal moment for VOANS, and we’re confident that Paul Soczynski is the leader we need for our health care initiatives as we move our organization forward,” said David Nisivoccia, EVP and COO of VOANS. “He has been a part of the organization for more than four years and brings organizational knowledge and a deep understanding of the health care industry to the role. We’re looking forward to his leadership as we expand our reach and impact on the communities we serve.”

Soczynski’s career spans more than 40 years in all aspects of health care including acute care, tertiary care, long-term care and managed care. He has served in various roles for VOANS since October 2019. Prior to his work at VOANS, Soczynski worked for United Healthcare, Accuity, Inc. and Community Care, Inc. in Wisconsin. He also has served as a Lecturer at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee in the College of Health Care Administration and the College of Health Sciences.

Soczynski received a bachelor’s degree in Health Information Administration from University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee and a master’s degree in business administration from Keller Graduate School of Management. Soczynski is a Wisconsin native and resides in West Allis, Wisconsin.
